Asst. Principal Mrs. Schimmel

Mrs. Schimmel, the assistant principal at CBHS, was selected to be this newsletter's first featured story because she is easy for students to talk to and always avails herself to them. We asked Mrs. Schimmel why she decided to be an assistant principal. She explained that she had tried teaching, but soon realized that she didn't enjoy being confined to one room. Next, she tried being a counselor. Although she enjoyed helping students, she had a deeper desire to be a leader. However, Mrs. Schimmel didn't always know that she wanted to work in education. When she was little, she wanted to work with animals, possibly be a veterinarian, or a marine biologist. She quickly noticed that she didn't have the heart to put the animals down. Mrs. Schimmel loves her job now and says the best part is the young people. She claimed the most challenging part of her job is to give us the best education possible. Mrs. Schimmel attended three different colleges. She enjoys spending time with her dogs, parents, and "facetimeing" with her granddaughter. She loves being at Clay-Battelle and she is excited about the return of the school newspaper. Lastly, Mrs. Schimmel would like to see an overwhelming outpouring of Cee-Bee pride!

Current Events

Hurricane Ida is now taking a toll on the southern part of the United States and has now been downgraded to a tropical storm. Nearly one million people in Louisiana are still without power. Hurricane Ida first made landfall in Louisiana, causing huge damage rates. The highest wind rate was 150 mph and caused flash floods. Hurricane Ida passed through West Virginia. There was minimal flooding in our community, but we did get a day off of school!
